

Connellsville's Biggest and Best Newspaper. Sworn Average Daily Circulation Last Week 5,739.

VOL. 15, NO. 57.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., WEDNESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 17, 1917

EIGHT PAGES.

FOOD SITUATION IN GERMANY GROWS MUCH MORE SERIOUS

Potatoes Scarce and Few
Eggs Secured Cost 16 to 20 Cents Each.

GREEKS ACCEPT ULTIMATUM

Terms of Allies Received Without Dissent by Agreement of the Crown
Council; Release of Venizelos Rollers is Expected at Any Hour.

By Associated Press
STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17.—The food situation in Germany has grown much worse during the last six months, according to the experience of an Associated Press correspondent who had returned from a trip to Berlin.

Potatoes are so scarce that the week's per capita ration in Berlin was less than four and a half pounds. This is attributed in part to the farmers' withholding shipments until February 15 when higher prices will be permitted but it is not denied that the potato crop is insufficient to meet normal demands. No change has been on the market since August and eggs are unobtainable except surreptitiously at 16 to 20 cents a piece.

Berlin's daily milk supply is about 350,000 litres against a normal 1,000,000 and it is impossible to buy clothing, shoes, stockings or blankets except by permission of the police. This latter, however, may be merely a precautionary measure as the shops appear well stocked with clothing.

GREEKS ACCEPT THE ALLIES' ULTIMATUM

LONDON, Jan. 17.—An Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says the Greek government has accepted the Entente's ultimatum without reservation. The decision was reached by the Crowned council on Tuesday afternoon, according to the dispatch and was immediately communicated to the Entente ministers.

The release of the Venizelos who were arrested after the outbreak in Athens on December 1 is expected hourly.

RUSSIANS RECAPTURE TOWNS ON THE DANUBE.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 17.—The war office announced the recapture of the village of Vaiden in Rumania, 40 miles southwest of the Danube town of Galatz.

HANOVER INFANTRY IN SUCCESSFUL TRENCH RAID

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—Hanover Infantry troops yesterday entered the French positions on Combes height and returned to their own trenches with several prisoners after defeating the hostile garrison in their trenches, says the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters.

Russian attacks against German positions south of Smoren on the Russian front were repelled yesterday, says the statement. The Russians who had entered the German line along a narrow front were driven back leaving numerous dead on the field.

Russian and Rumanian forces yesterday continued their violent attacks with strong forces against the German line recently captured by the Germans between the Rasino and Stechitz valleys, the statement continues. At only one place did the Russians and Rumanians succeed in gaining a foothold, being sanguinely repulsed at the other battle points.

Near Vadentz between Bralia and Galatz, the statement adds, the advanced Turkish posts were retired according to command in the fact of numerically superior hostile forces to the main intercepting line.

BRITISH GET CONTRACT

English Firm to Make Projectiles For U. S. Navy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Contractors for armor-piercing naval projectiles of the 14 and 16 inch type totalling $3,451,000 today were awarded by Secretary Daniels to the Hatfields Limited, the English munition company.

Bids from American firms were more than $200 a shell in excess of that submitted by Hatfields. In announcing the award Secretary Daniels said the department had made every effort to secure reductions in prices which would enable it to give a contract to an American concern but had failed to obtain satisfactory bids.

Doctor Found Guilty,
CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 17.—Dr. Ben R. Kitzman of New York was today found guilty of distributing birth control literature after a jury had deliberated 13 hours. Kitzman was fined $1,000 and sentenced to serve six months in the workhouse.

Three New Cases,
CRADDOCK, Va., Jan. 17.—Three new cases of infantile paralysis have developed here since yesterday, making a total of 18.

32 Cases of Paralysis,
ELKINS, W. Va., Jan. 17.—Thirty-two cases of infantile paralysis have been discovered here to date.

ORGANIZER OF HELPING HAND BROTHERHOOD AWARDED $107 IN HIS SUIT TO RECOVER $5,400

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Jan. 17.—Thomas Henry Brown, negro organizer and supreme president of the Supreme Order of the Helping Hand, was today awarded a verdict of $107 against W. H. Rainey of Dawson, E. B. Moore, of St. James Park, J. A. Smith of Dawson, and Dr. G. B. Roberts of Vanderburg. The verdict returned before Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen in common pleas court represents Brown's salary for one month, December, 1915, with interest. Brown sued to recover $5,400 plus legal interest, claiming that he had been hired by the defendants for a period of six years. Judge Van Swearingen instructed the jury that there was no testimony that the negro had been employed for any specified period.

By Associated Press
STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17.—The food situation in Germany has grown much worse during the last six months, according to the experience of an Associated Press correspondent who had returned from a trip to Berlin.

Potatoes are so scarce that the week's per capita ration in Berlin was less than four and a half pounds. This is attributed in part to the farmers' withholding shipments until February 15 when higher prices will be permitted but it is not denied that the potato crop is insufficient to meet normal demands. No change has been on the market since August and eggs are unobtainable except surreptitiously at 16 to 20 cents a piece.

Berlin's daily milk supply is about 350,000 litres against a normal 1,000,000 and it is impossible to buy clothing, shoes, stockings or blankets except by permission of the police. This latter, however, may be merely a precautionary measure as the shops appear well stocked with clothing.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed. The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about 400 men who were to be landed.

The point at which the Hudson Maru put in makes it appear probable that the German raider was operating off the coast of South America.

The first news of the raid was received with the arrival at Pernambuco, Brazil, on Monday night, of the Japanese steamship Hudson Maru which had on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of the vessels destroyed between December 12 and January 12. In addition the British steamship Yarrowdale, one of the captured vessels, was sent off with about

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

In honor of her guest, Miss Helen Brinton of Philadelphia, Miss Katherine Fisher will give a box party tomorrow night at the Colonial theatre to see "Dolly Dimples," to be presented under the auspices of the Connellsville High School Alumni Association. Saturday afternoon Miss Fisher will give a bridge party at her home in West Crawford avenue in honor of Miss Brinton. The guest list will include only members of the younger social set.

An announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Anna Kate Berg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Berg of Uniontown, formerly of Connellsville, and Paul Whyley, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Whyley of Uniontown, solemnized Monday in Greensburg. The bride is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Berg of this city.

An all day meeting of the Ladies' Sewing Circle of the First Baptist Church was held today at the church.

In honor of her birthday, Mrs. William Furlong was tendered a very delightful surprise party last night at her home at the St. James Hotel in West Crawford avenue. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Furlong's small daughters, Ruth and Bessie Furlong, and was given in all its appointments. The evening was enjoyed spent at cards and at the close of the games a delicious luncheon was served. Mrs. Furlong received a number of pretty and useful gifts in commemoration of the happy occasion. About twenty-five of her friends attended. Out of town guests were Mrs. Frank Richards of Scottdale, and George Miller of Fayette City.

Shilo Lodge 103, Ladies' Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, will meet tomorrow afternoon. Following the business meeting the officers will give a reception in honor of the Auxiliary.

Twenty-two members of the L. W. Class of the First Baptist Sunday school, accompanied by the class teacher, E. H. Martin, attended in body services at the First Baptist Church last evening. Following the services the regular business meeting of the class was held, business of a routine nature being transacted.

The regular meeting of the N. C. D. Class of the First Methodist Episcopal Church was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Detwiler on the South Side. During the business session it was decided to collect papers to be sold for the benefit of the class, next week. The meeting was well attended. Refreshments were served.

The Young Ladies' Missionary Guild of the Trinity Reformed Church will meet Friday night at the home of Miss Louise Painter in Vine street.

Nine members attended a delightful meeting of the busy Twelve Club held last evening at the home of Mrs. B. F. Wagman in Ninth street, Greenwood. Several hours were spent at fun work and later in the evening dainty refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held Tuesday evening, January 30, at the home of Mrs. James Strawn in Acton street.

The Young Ladies' Missionary Guild of the Christian Church will hold a missionary luncheon Saturday afternoon, February 10, at 1 o'clock in the church in honor of Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Cunningham.

A special meeting, at which a sermon will be delivered by Rev. Father John T. Burns, will be held this evening in the Immaculate Conception Church by the Young Ladies' Society. A social session at the parochial school auditorium will follow the meeting.

The King's Daughters of the Trinity Lutheran Church at the regular monthly business and social meeting

Don't say "Breakfast Food"—say "Shredded Wheat"—for while you no doubt mean Shredded Wheat, you may get one of those mushy porridges that are a poor substitute for the crisp, delicious shreds of baked whole wheat—that supply all the nutriment for a half day's work. Two Biscuits with milk or cream make a nourishing meal at a cost of a few cents.

PLAYGROUNDS AND THEIR ADVANTAGES SHOWN IN MOVIE

Continued from Page One. wrote Dr. J. P. Kerr, Pittsburg councilman, a brother of Dr. J. F. Kerr of Connellsville; Councilman G. A. Dillinger, well known here; W. F. Ashe, superintendent of the Bureau of Recreation at Pittsburg, a brother of S. P. Ashe, city school superintendent, and Miss Hazel Keffler, a former Connellsville school teacher.

"We want to get things going right away," John Duggan, Sr., president of the Playgrounds Association, told a reporter today. "I think the first thing to do is to begin on the ground below Fayette Field with a lever and get it in shape for a playground. He also suggested planting quick-growing poplar trees on the ground as soon as spring breaks. The trees can be seen from the state.

A canvass of the city for contributions to the fund will be made as soon as the plans of the committee are in more complete shape.

A swimming pool on a vacant lot on Seventh street, West Side, has been suggested as a summer possibility.

BROAD FORD NEXT.

Maccabees Will Play Fast Five on Friday Night.

The Broad Ford basketball team will be the attraction at the Maccabees Hall Friday evening. The Broad Ford boys have not appeared before the public much this season but have been continually at practice and may give the Maccahees a hard fight.

The preliminary game will be played between the South Connellsville team and the Overholser girls. Overholser has yet to be beaten this year and the South Connellsville girls have only appeared once, that against the Maccahees girls.

LECTURE ON CHINA.

Rev. C. C. Buckner to Discuss Oriental Nation.

Rev. C. C. Buckner will give a lecture on China, "Yesterday and Tomorrow," showing the past and future of one of the most interesting nations in all the world, tomorrow evening at the Y. M. C. A. at Dickerson Run.

The views will be in colors and will show what the real Chinese are doing and thinking, and the stupendous changes after a century of Christian missions. No admission will be charged.

HAD LARGE ESTATE.

John Douglas Left Property Valued at $225,000.

In the will of the late John Douglas of Uniontown, filed yesterday, an estate, the estimated value of which is $225,000, was divided. The value of the personal property is estimated at $25,000 and the real estate, after encumbrances have been deducted, $200,000.

The entire estate is left to the widow, Sarah L. Douglas.

Farmers to Meet.

A program on "The Boycott," will be carried out at the monthly meeting of the Union Farmers Club of Fayette County to be held Saturday at 10 a.m. Mr. and Mrs. John T. Smith's home, "Elm Dale Farm," near Dunbar. T. H. Smith will discuss, "Does It Work to the Advantage of the Producer or Consumer?" "How Can the Evil Effects Be Reduced?" will be discussed by E. E. Arnold. Readings will be given by J. K. Junk and W. B. Swarington.

Admitted to Hospital.

Noah Turell, 42 years old, was admitted to the Cottage State Hospital last night for treatment of pneumonia. Theresa Rondine, 17 years old, underwent a throat operation this morning. Joseph Barrett was discharged today from the hospital.

Girl at Landis Home.

Word had been received here of the arrival of a daughter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Landis at Somerton. Mrs. Landis was formerly Miss Edna Adams, a daughter of Mrs. M. J. Adams, a former resident of Connellsville.

Miss Tibbets Recovering.

Miss Martha Tibbets, who has been confined to her home with an attack of appendicitis, is able to be about in her room. Miss Tibbets is a stenographer in the office of W. S. Anderson, chief clerk for the West Penn Railways Company.

Got Marriage Licenses.

Harry L. Baer of Akron, O., and Ruth H. Shoat of Smithfield; Mike Adams of Braxwell and Annie Pusker of Star Junction, were granted marriage licenses in Uniontown yesterday.

At Mothers' Board Meeting.

Mrs. J. P. Kerr and Mrs. W. P. Clark attended a meeting of the Mothers' Assistance Board of Fayette county held today in Uniontown.

In many a home the keystone of the family's health is a daily ration of the splendid whole wheat and barley food—

Grape-Nuts

The reason lies in the fact that this food contains an abundance of those elements—the mineral salts—so necessary for well-balanced bodies, brains and nerves. Grape-Nuts also includes the entire nutriment of the grains, in concentrated, easily digestible form, ready-to-eat from the package.

Grape-Nuts is usually eaten with cream or milk, and the flavor is wonderfully delicious. It also combines in numerous attractive, special dishes.

Better digestion, better health, better accomplishment, with Grape-Nuts as a daily food.

"There's a Reason"

in the Fairmont schools, is the guest of Miss Kathryn Porter of East Green street. The schools of Fairmont are closed on account of an epidemic of infantile paralysis.

Mrs. H. P. Snyder went to Pittsburgh this morning to spend the day. Miss Martha Eaton went to Pittsburgh this morning.

Misses Jenny Leebet, Sarah Everett and Mayme Knecht were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Anderson of Scottdale last evening.

Mrs. H. B. Pigman of East Crawford avenue, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Oscar Johnson of Uniontown today.

W. M. Dow of Greensburg, a former well known resident of Dawson, is in town on business.

Dr. S. G. McCune of Buena Vista, formerly of Connellsville, was in town today on business.

The Grim Reaper

JOHN MITTS.

John Mitty, about 72 years old, a well known retired Baltimore & Ohio engineer, and a veteran of the Civil War, died yesterday morning at his home in Hazelwood following an illness extending back about two years ago. Mr. Mitty is a son of the late William and John Mitty of Connellsville. He entered the service of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad about 37 years ago and the greater part of that time was an engineer. He was one of the best known engineers on the Pittsburg division, running for years on trains Nos. 5 and 6 and other through trains. He also ran on the C. & O. branch and prior to his retirement about two years ago on a pension, was engineer on the Vicksburg accommodation.

While working on the C. & O. branch Mr. Mitty resided at Confluence, moving from there to Versailles. For the past six years he had resided at Hazelwood. Deceased served three years in the Civil War. He was twice married. His first wife was a Miss Helene of Connellsville. He is survived by his second wife, who before her marriage was Miss Jeanie Wiggington of Connellsville and 10 children, including Mrs. Rebecca Kaufman and Mrs. Rhoda Mitty of Connellsville and Joseph Miller of Lemont, and two sisters, Mrs. Lydia Savage and Mrs. Julia Shupley, both of Connellsville, also a surviving son.

MRS. SARAH J. ZIMMERMAN.

Mrs. Sarah J. Zimmerman, 67 years old, widow of Harry Zimmerman, died last night at the home of her son, Mrs. Walter Menefee in Crawford avenue, West Side, following a three weeks' illness of complication of diseases. Funeral Friday at noon from the Menefee residence and at 2 o'clock from the Methodist Protestant Church at Percy. Rev. L. A. Barnes of Fairmont and Rev. D. B. Mihner of Dunbar will officiate.

Deceased was born in the West Side, and resided there until her marriage to Harry Zimmerman, who for a number of years was mail carrier from Uniontown to Unionville. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman spent virtually all their life at Coolsping. Mr. Zimmerman died about two years ago and since then his widow had made her home with her niece, Mrs. Menefee.

She was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church at Coolsping, and was a sister-in-law to J. C. Marshall of Broad Ford. Mrs. Zimmerman was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ebenezer Holliday of the West Side.

MRS. DEMPSY MILLER.

Rev. E. B. Burgess, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Dempsey Miller held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence in Blackstone avenue. The services were attended by many relatives and friends of the deceased. Interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

ROBERT McKITTERICK.

The funeral of Robert McKitterick, who died Saturday at Somerton, will take place tomorrow morning from St. John's Roman Catholic Church in Uniontown. Mr. McKitterick resided virtually all his life in Uniontown. C. A. at Dickerson Run.

LEOPOLD W. VILSACK.

Leopold W. Vilsack, 45 years old, a well known business man of Pittsburg, died last night at the Mercy Hospital, Pittsburg. Mr. Vilsack is the father of Misses Virginia and Pauline Vilsack who frequently visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Stader in West Crawford avenue.

MRS. MARY HANEY.

Mrs. Mary Haney, 59 years old, died yesterday morning at her home in Uniontown following a lingering illness.

IT IS SERIOUS

Some Connellsville People Don't Realize the Seriousness of a Bad Back.

The constant aching of a bad back, the weak spine, the dragging legs, the pains and aches of kidneyills may result seriously if neglected.

Dangerous urinary troubles often follow.

A Connellsville citizen shows you what to do.

Mrs. M. C. Gilmore, 247 E. Fairview Avenue, Jefferson Hills, said yesterday that Doctor Kidney Pills are one remedy. I used them seven years ago when my kidneys were weak. I found this remedy very beneficial and I willingly recommend it.

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't delay for a remedy—get Doctor Kidney Pills—some that Mrs. Gilmore had. Foster-Stilburn Co., Bronx, Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

To Give Bridal Luncheon.

Mrs. Gerald Bryce of Mount Pleasant and sister, Mrs. Andrew Sloan, will give a bridal luncheon Thursday afternoon, January 25, at Mrs. Sloan's home in Pittsburg in honor of Miss Dorothy Leech of Pittsburg, the fiancee of Robert Swan of Pittsburg.

With Pittsburg Trust Company, Conrad Guthrie, who has resigned as teller at the Tough Trust Company, has secured a position with the Metropolitan Trust Company at Pittsburg, not the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, as stated yesterday.

To Avoid Dandruff.

You do not want a slow treatment for itching scalp when hair is falling and the dandruff germ is killing the hair roots. Dandruff—no hair.

Get at any drug store, a bottle of zemo for 25c or $1.00 for extra large size. Use as directed, for it does the work quickly. It kills the dandruff germ, nourishes the hair roots and immediately stops itching scalp. It is a pure, reliable, antiseptic liquid, is not greasy, is easy to use and will not stain. Soaps and shampoos are harmful, as they contain alkalis. Zemo, for it to work for you, must be applied directly to the scalp.

At Mothers' Board Meeting.

Mrs. J. P. Kerr and Mrs. W. P. Clark attended a meeting of the Mothers' Assistance Board of Fayette county held today in Uniontown.

A GRADUATE NURSE

Why She Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in poor health for two years, caused by an displacement of the womb, and I lost weight. I was under a doctor's care without getting any help. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is good, and it made me feel like a new woman. I am entirely relieved of the displacement and periodic pains, and now the womb is of a beautiful healthy baby. I am a better person and will be glad to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to other women."—Mrs. R. W. SLOAN, 6206 Sar Park Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

There are many women who suffer from a womb that is out of position and it causes many discomforts.

If you have any special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. . . .

PASTOR ATTACKS SLANDEROUS TALK

Rev. Buckner Does Not Mince Words In Sermon at United Presbyterian Church.

Ever-increasing interest marks the revival services which are being held in seven local Churches as part of the simultaneous evangelistic campaign.

Owing to the non-arrival of Rev. Thomas A. Gibson of Verona, who is to conduct revival services at the United Presbyterian Church here, Rev. C. C. Buckner of the Christian Church, preached last night's sermon. In health, it is held, would not permit Rev. Gibson to come here. He is expected here today, however, and will probably preach tonight.

Rev. Buckner preached a strong sermon appealing for consecrated effort in behalf of the present evangelistic campaign. After a scathing attack on slanderous talking and profanity among church members, he devoted himself mainly to the theme of sacrifice and its necessity. The message was pointed and stirring and the congregation seemed very much impressed.

Sixty ladies, members and friends of the Aid and Missions Society, composed the delegation of the evening. The music was excellent. The choir of five voices, under the direction of Robert L. Werner, sang a special number and led in the congregational singing. Tonight the special delegations will be the Sunday school teachers and their classes. A preservice prayer meeting is held each night at 7:30.

Rev. C. L. Richardson at the Methodist Episcopal Church last night preached a sermon on the text, "The Father Hath Sent the Son to Be the Savior of the World." The audience was good-sized. Tonight Rev. Richardson will preach on "The Awful State of the Unconverted." Mr. Hicks and Miss Francis will sing a duet.

A prayer meeting, led by Rev. Richardson, was held this morning at the home of W. J. Hicks. Tomorrow morning a meeting will be held at the home of Strickler Stacy on South Pittsburg street.

Rev. B. F. Taber of Wilmette, Ill., preached a place of Rev. W. B. Nelson at the Baptist Church last night. The meeting was good one, with a large congregation. About 20 members of the L. W. Class of the Sunday school made up a special delegation. Tonight Rev. Nelson will preach on "The Pharisee and the Publican."

Rev. W. F. Fleming of Tarentum, preached last night at the First Presbyterian Church on the subject, "The Choice of the Highest." Tonight, Rev. Fleming will take as his theme, "The Home side of a Quicken Church." Interest in the meetings is constantly deepening," Rev. Fleming said today.

YOUR SURPLUS FUND.

The Earning Power of Money is

EDUCATORS WILL MEET AND DISCUSS INSTITUTE PLANS

Reduction of Curriculum
by Mt. Pleasant School the Topic.

HOK AND LADDER INSPECTION

Hyper Equipment Examined and Men Sustained to Places on the Trucks
Mother of Man Found Dead at Death Jumble to Take Charge of the Body.

Social to The Courier
MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 17.—At a union and educational conference to be held in the Rider Inn here Friday, January 19, the reduction of a curriculum for the Mount Pleasant institute will be discussed by prominent educators from this section of the state and the trustees of the institution. The instruction committee of the institute will be present. This consists of John M. Stauffer of Scottsdale; Judge C. H. Reppert of Uniontown; Dr. Leroy Stevens of Dickbach University at Lewisburg; Howard H. Kinney of Martin; and Dr. M. D. Loar of Mount Pleasant.

Among the prominent educators who have been invited are: Dean Chamberlain of the University of Pittsburgh; G. W. Abbott of the extension branch of University of Pittsburgh; County Superintendents Carroll of Fayette, Shaffer of Westmoreland, and Seibert of Somerset; City Superintendents Ashe of Connellsville; Steele of Latrobe; Mink of Scottsdale, and Gordy of Mount Pleasant.

A meeting of the Hook and Ladder Company last night the annual inspection of the rubber hose was conducted. Each man was also assigned this place on the new hook and ladder truck which council recently purchased from the department.

The Knights Militia were hosts to about 100 friends in L. O. F. Hall last night at an old time party. Games were played and there was music and refreshments. Robert Goodwin was the principal speaker.

Word has been received from the mother of Peter Kitchkowsky, who was found dead at Uecla on Monday morning, that she is ill and unable to take charge of the body. It will be interred in the Polish cemetery here today.

The first Parent-Teachers meeting of the year will be held in the high school on Thursday evening.

Miss Ella Penrice Frye and Miss Kathryn Dier of Irwin, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart, Sunday.

AGED FARMER

Made Strong and Well by Vinol
The following letter from farmer Lester adds another link to the great chain of evidence which proves that there is nothing equal to Vinol for creating strength for feeble, weak, rundown conditions and after sickness.

Vestal Center, N. Y.—"I am a farmer 74 years of age and got into a weak, run-down condition as a result of the grippe. One druggist suggested Vinol to build me up and I noticed an improvement soon after taking it, and it has restored my strength so I can now do a good day's work. My wife has also taken Vinol for a run-down condition with splendid results."

—H. W. Lester.

Loughrey Drug Co., Connellsville.

Vinol is also sold in the West Side by Fred H. Harmerding.—Adv.

CONFLUENCE

CONFLUENCE, Jan. 17.—Revival meetings are still in progress in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Joseph Ream of Draketown, was here yesterday on his return from a business trip to Connellsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Purcell returned recently from a visit to their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Miller of Viroqua, W. Va.

Mrs. G. C. Michaels has returned from a visit & several months with her daughter, Mrs. Ralph McClure of Oklahoma.

Mrs. H. L. Neese and three children have returned to their home in Hattie, Mo., after being here attending the funeral of a relative.

C. G. Masters of Benetley, has returned from a business trip to Connellsville.

George Butler has returned to his home at Johnson's Chapel, after visiting friends at Brownsville for a few days.

Gilbert Endale of Somerset, was a business visitor here yesterday.

David Crook was a business caller at Crosby yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Graw and three children left yesterday for a visit with friends at Connellsville.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver to a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lax, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested foods, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute to calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without grating, rinsing or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. You can eat what you like. At 10¢ a 25c per box. All druggists.

MELLEN BEGAN AS CLERK AND ROSE TO PRESIDENCY OF NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

CHARLES S. MELLEN

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

The American men and women guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from over-work, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act well. This famous salt is made from the juice of grapes and lemon juice, combined with silica, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so no longer is source of irritation thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent half-water beverage and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time—Adv.

GREWSOME PRESENTS.

To Make a Chinaman Happy Give Him a Coffin as a Gift.

A Chinese custom that seems particularly strange to occidental readers is described by Sir Alexander Heseltine in his account of a journey through the interior of China, "On the Trail of the Opium Poppy."

At the hamlet of Fengshihling, thirteen miles from Chinchenghsien, he says, we passed into Pa Isien district, in which the port of Chincheng is situated. No one ever sees a coffin without being impressed by the sight, and here we saw them in the place as well as made up. Every house had a coffin or two lying under the eaves, some new, some old, and one's first name was that mortality in these parts must be great.

The cause was, of course, the abundance of cypresses, a wood that is much prized for coffin making, and it must be remembered that in China a coffin is a very acceptable present, especially to the dead.

Dozens of pounds are often spent on a single coffin, and it is highly treasured by the person for whom it has been designed. To western ideas this presents the notion of a coffin lying in a room to a parent, who would be somewhat ingenuous, and the only sight of it at the house door would be decidedly unpropitious. In China it is otherwise. A coffin is one of the most valued of gifts.

An Early Street Cleaner.

"One day," Ben Franklin wrote in his autobiography, "I found a poor, old, decrepit man who was willing to undertake the keeping of the pavement clean by sweeping it twice a week, carrying off the dirt from before all the neighbors' doors for the sum of 4 pence per month to be paid by each house. I then wrote and printed a paper setting forth the advantages to the neighborhood that might be obtained by this small experiment. I sent one of these papers to each house and in a day or two went around to see who would subscribe an agreement to have these streets cleaned well and expeditiously. This raised a general desire to have all the streets paved and made the people more willing to submit to a tax for that purpose."

And the roads are a perpetual delight. The King's highway winds through these hills—a public road that would cost the landed proprietor who owns the ground on either side of it half his fortune in legal expenses to close up.—Exchange.

PRIMOGENTIUM.
The law of primogeniture sends its roots to the most ancient times. Away back in the patriarchal ages the firstborn son had a superiority over all his brethren and in the absence of his father was in every important sense the head of the house. Upon the death of the father he became by the unwritten law, which could not be questioned, the priest and lord of the family, and naturally to him fell the property as well as the honor of the household. Primogeniture wherever it is found today is the lingering remnant of the ancient custom.

Down town is the treacherous jungle into which father plunges to stalk the family's living. After 10,000 years of civilization it is still the same. Ax-wielding eyes follow him from the sidewalk till he turns the corner to the railroad station, and fowling eyes greet him as he staggers out of the elevator door in his apartment house home with his prey, so to speak, on his shoulder.

Wives will never be reconciled to downtown. It swallows up the man of the house when he would much rather stay at home and play with the children—so he pretends—and it sends him home at night too tired to be agreeable—as he asserts. Thus the little game goes on.

The primitive hunter, I imagine, made believe that he hated to leave the family and go off into the dark forest, and on his return he threw himself before the fire too tired to speak. Actually, I believe, the primitive hunter as soon as he was out of sight of home broke into a cheerful whistle—Slavon Strunsky in Harper's Magazine.

Desperation.

"Oh, yes," replied the suburban dweller. "It suits me very well, I'm glad for my wife's sake that I bought the portable piano."

"By gosh!"
"She's had it moved half a dozen times because she didn't think it looked well from the street!"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

It Was Possible.

Edith—You haven't seen my engagement ring, have you?—Mark—I don't know. Who is the man?—Boston Transcript.

At 10¢ a 25c per box. All druggists.

BELL-ANS

Absolutely Removes

Indigestion. One package

proves it. 25¢ at all druggists.

BORN IN GERMANY AND FORMERLY A BRITON, KAHN WILL BE AMERICAN CITIZEN

OTTO H. KAHN

Otto H. Kahn, the prominent banker, member of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, New York, who has been a resident of New York for 23 years, has filed application in the county court at Morristown, N. J., his legal residence, to become a citizen of the United States.

Mr. Kahn was born in Mannheim, Germany, and after serving in the army and receiving a banking education in his father's business house, went to London and became connected with the Deutsche bank. He became a British subject. At one time he was offered the candidacy for parliament from the Gorton division of Lancashire. Mr. Kahn figured prominently in the news recently in the peace note "leak" inquiry, when it was asserted that he, with others, profited by advance news of the President's peace move. He denied the assertion.

CROOKED, BUT FAMOUS.

Washington Street, Boston. One of the World's Great Thoroughfares.

Washington street in Boston is one of the great thoroughfares of America, worthy to rank with Broadway in New York and Michigan Avenue in Chicago. Little nearly everything else in Boston, it has a history of almost incredible length and respectability, making other streets seem paltry and young and crude and cruddy.

Moreover, Washington street is one of the longest in the world, running all the way through Boston and on to another town without a stop or a break. This is not accomplished without many a bend and meander, however, for Washington street is amazingly crooked, as are nearly all the thoroughfares of Puritan origin. It seems that the Mayflower party did not realize how the Boston way goes to be, and so they carelessly let the cows lay out the streets as they wandered homeward.

Washington street today does not look like the aristocrat of ancient highways. On the contrary, it appears decidedly democratic, swarming with all sorts of people who jostle and push each other on the narrow, overbearing sidewalk in the brilliant glare of numerous electric signs that dash the rival merits of moving picture shows, bars and cafes.—Exchange.

CURIOUS CLUBS.

The Man Killers, Their Cheerful Talk and Fighting Fato.

One of the oldest purely social clubs was the Everlasting club, limited in membership to a hundred people, who divided the day among them in such a way that some of them were always on the premises. Solely for the purpose of keeping up the bro from which members lighted their pipes an old woman was kept, and during the fifty years of existence of the club members smoked fifty tons of tobacco.

No one who had not killed an opponent in a duel was allowed to be a member of the Man Killing club, where the conversation was confined to wounds, bullets and slaughter. Curiously enough, most of the members were executed.

Very different in character was the Six o'clock club, whose members numbered only six at the time of its organization and separated it in the morning.

Meeting early in the evening, and sitting smoking until midnight, the curious people forming the literary club observed the strictest silence.

But perhaps the most curious club was the No Nose club, which was founded by an unwilling follower of the Egyptian fashion of flat faces.—London Telegraph.

Sentinel Tablets

conquer constipation—

liven up a lazy liver—

banish biliousness—

at druggists.

True Secret of Keeping Youthful Looking

(The Beauty Seeker.)

"The secret of keeping young-looking and beautiful, gives a person a healthy complexion, keeps the liver and bowel normally active, and prevents pulmonary waste products from remaining in the system, polluting the blood and judging in various organs, and causing disease and premature death."

"Sentinel tablets, which have been called 'vegetable calomel' because of their effectiveness, the result of which is due to the presence of mercurial salts. There is no habit-forming quality in the tablets, and their use is not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"They fight off the evil eye, without producing evil after-effects."

"Fortunately, there is now a tablet form of the tablets, which may be had in convenient tablet form. Its value is due largely to an ingredient, calomel, which is not to be confused with the red calomel of mercurial origin. There is no habit-forming quality in the tablets, and their use is not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"On the contrary, these tablets, which may be had in tablet form, are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets are not followed by weariness, mental sluggishness, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow face."

"The tablets

The Daily Courier.

HENRY P. SNYDER,
Founder and Editor, 1873-1914.
THE COUNTRYSIDE COMPANY,
Publishers.

K. M. SNYDER,
President.
JAS. J. TRUSCOLL,
Secty and Treasurer, Business Manager.

JOHN L. GANS,
Managing Editor,
WILLIAM P. SHERMAN,
Editor,
MISS LYNN B. KINGELLA,
Society Editor.

SIMONSON OF:
Associated Press,
Audit Bureau of Circulations,
Pennsylvania Associated Publishers.

Two cents per copy, 50c per month,
50 per year by mail or paid in advance.

Entered as second class matter at the postoffice, Connellsville, Pa.

WEDNESDAY EVENG., JAN. 17, 1917.

THINGS COURTS WON'T STAND.

Because exact and overhanded justice is not always dealt out in the courts to violators of the law is no reason why others of the class should presume that they too can escape, or that the administration of justice can be suited to their convenience or desires.

This was rather forcibly impressed upon the mind of a defendant who appeared before Judge Van Swearingen a few days ago to receive sentence on charges to which he had entered a plea of guilty. When appearing for sentence his attorneys asked that the defendant be admitted to parole, or that sentence be suspended. Judge Van Swearingen gave very emphatic refusal to the request, saying:

"The court is not going to stand for a man coming in and saying that he is guilty of everything he is charged and then ask for leniency."

For his presumption the defendant was allowed to withdraw his plea of guilty and will now be obliged to stand trial at the March term of court. The lesson will have its value to this defendant and the example ought not to be lost on others who may have similar ideas as to the administration of justice.

THE "LEAK" AND LAWSON.

The Democrats in Congress have been blowing both hot and cold so much on the "leak" investigation, and uttering such vehement protests against the possible bewitchment of the body which Thomas W. Lawson's charges imply that the country now really expects such action as will prove or disprove the falsity of the Bostonian financier's rather specific allegations and claims.

In the hearing which has created about the most profound suspicion Washington has experienced during many administrations, Lawson has shown that he can neither be bluffed, bullied nor made afraid. He has made certain very direct and cut-and-drawn statements which connect a member of Congress, a number of President Wilson's Cabinet, Secretary Tammey and other well known persons with the incident which was the basis for his original charge. The mere fact that all the persons named by the Boston broker have entered vigorous defense will not alone satisfy the public, especially since Lawson has furnished the investigating committee with a list of names of well known men who are ready to corroborate many of the statements he has made.

To a disinterested outsider the investigation begins to look as if it is operating somewhat differently from the average congressional inquiry into complaints or charges against members of that body. It seems to have gotten somewhat beyond control of the committee itself and given proof of affecting a real investigation. At the outset the Democrats were disposed to look upon it as a wicked Republican maneuver and sought to shut it off. Then an effort was made to blight Lawson by a threat of instituting contempt proceedings. There is where the committee misjudged the temper of the man it was attempting to humiliate. He has come back at his pretenses with a vengeance by giving them rather more information than they were anticipating. It is now up to the committee to make the investigation fail and complete by compelling Lawson to substantiate his charges by testimony other than his own, or proving him to have been guilty of perjury in making them.

WHEN TAX BURDEN SHIFTS.

Farm Agent Daugherty, has acquired a very comprehensive grasp of Fayette county's agricultural possibilities and needs within the comparatively short time he has been engaged in the Farm Bureau work. He has been instrumental in infusing a new spirit into the farmer's calling through the simple process of pointing out better and easier ways of doing things and in achieving larger results in the process.

The farmers have responded to his efforts and been profited by his instruction in a truly remarkable way, so generally in fact that it can truly be said that Fayette county is well on the way to a recovery of its former prestige as an agricultural community, such as it was before the sudden rise in coal land values and the development of many new coking fields in the county.

Looking ahead Farm Agent Daugherty sees that the farmers of Fayette of a few years or a generation hence will be confronted with conditions quite unlike those now prevailing. Instead of depending upon the coal and coke operations to pay 85% of the taxes a large part of that burden will fall upon the farmers. To meet that situation it is urged that the court cultivate all the land they possibly can.

Upon this point Farm Agent Daugherty may find many farmers to differ with him. Among those who have profited by his work and instruction are many who will recall that, prior to the extension of the Farm Bureau work to this county, the attempt of a large number of farmers to cultivate large areas was one of the causes leading to a decline in Fayette county's farming value and importance. Because of insufficient preparation of the soil and lack of thorough cultivation of the growing crops, the yield per acre was gradually reduced and farming, as measured by the return per acre, became more unremunerative.

The practice of Farm Bureau's generally and of the agricultural college extension work has been rather in the direction of the more intensive cultivation of smaller areas with the view to securing the maximum yield and to increase instead of diminish the productive capacity of the soil. This plan present day farmers are coming to realize is more profitable than the earlier method of farming large acreages indifferently, and better adapted to the needs and conditions of the time, especially in view of the difficult problem facing the farmer of obtaining farm labor.

Farm Agent Daugherty may have had in mind the eventual extension to large acreages of the principles and methods of intensive farming on small areas, but until the farmers of Fayette are better positioned in the matter of a dependable farm labor supply it would appear that the most profitable return can be had by farming on a comparatively small scale, otherwise they will be less able than now to assume the larger burden of the county's taxation, when it falls upon them some years hence.

CHINESE COMPETITION.

There is a large measure of hypocrisy in the makeup of many of the Democratic leaders who profess great concern over the admission to the United States of Chinese laborers, who, they fear, will become unfair competitors of our own native and naturalized laborers.

Because the Chinese workers are willing to live cheaply, work long and accept low wages, they are classed as undesirable additions to our population. All of which is quite true. But if their presence would make them undesirable competitors with our own labor here in America, why are they also undesirable competitors while engaged at home in the production of commodities to be shipped here, and sold in competition with the products of our own better paid and better housed American laborers?

The Chinese can live cheaper in China than they can here, hence they are to that degree better able to compete with American laborers at home than if they were residents here.

From any viewpoint, as far as the being competitor is concerned it would be better to admit them than to banish them altogether.

Through preparations for industrial development after the war are not directed particularly against neutral countries, a natural result will be that in framing protective tariffs, European nations will inevitably discriminate to some degree against the manufactured products of neutrals. Great Britain and France on the one hand, and Germany and Austria on the other, desire to buy raw materials from such neutral nations as those in North and South America and pay for the same with manufactured articles made from those raw materials. Under the provisions of the Democratic tariff law, European countries are encouraged to ship their manufactured products

A LABORING MAN'S PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. (Special)—

Aside from the vigorous prosecution of the war in which they are involved, the greatest effort now being made by the nations of Europe is to prepare for the industrial conflict certain to come after the war has closed. Although many European manufacturing enterprises have been operated more extensively during the war than before, this has been due to the necessity for supplying the armies with the food and clothing they require. When this demand has ended, new markets for their products must be found. Preparations for the changed conditions is, therefore, the great task now before them which are laboring.

In the effort to prepare for industrial competition after the war, European nations are striving to do two things first, to produce as large a proportion as possible of the commodities they need for home consumption, and second, to find as large a market as possible for their surplus products.

In order to secure their home market to their own producers, such nations as Great Britain and France contemplate protective tariffs giving an advantage to their own people and to their allies. Great Britain will no longer be content to depend upon Germany for dye-stuffs or for a number of other manufactured commodities in which Germany has taken the lead in the last quarter of a century.

Through preparations for industrial development after the war are not directed particularly against neutral countries, a natural result will be that in framing protective tariffs, European nations will inevitably discriminate to some degree against the manufactured products of neutrals. Great Britain and France on the one hand, and Germany and Austria on the other, desire to buy raw materials from such neutral nations as those in North and South America and pay for the same with manufactured articles made from those raw materials. Under the provisions of the Democratic tariff law, here. That is exactly what they desire to do and will do unless the present tariff rates are increased to such an extent as to overcome the trade advantages those countries have by reason of the higher wages and higher standards of living in this country.

European countries are encouraged to ship their manufactured products

The amazing feature of the situation is that when all the leading countries of Europe are studying opportunities for commercial advantage through enactment of tariff laws, those in control of American policies are giving no thought whatever to this subject. The same spirit of watchful waiting which has been characteristic of the present administration, is present today, and apparently we shall have no legislation designed to prepare this country for the impending industrial conflict. It has been possible for this country to remain out of the military war. We have been content to submit to all sorts of indignities rather than fight. This we cannot do in the industrial war which is certain to come. We must engage in that conflict and shall either hold our own in trade competition, or be vanquished by those who make early preparation and who wage the trade war with more vigor than we.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this country from disastrous competition when the armies of Europe have returned to the activities of peace.

As the brunt of military war falls upon the privates who do the fighting, and as they are the ones who suffer most in case of defeat, the suffering which must follow industrial defeat will fall most heavily on the wage earners who will be thrown out of employment. Laboring men of America are too much disposed to assume that such questions as the tariff are of little interest to them and may well be left entirely to party leaders. No greater error could be made. Unless the laboring men are willing to suffer the consequences of defeat in the industrial war which is certain to come, they should insist that their representatives in the halls of national legislation shall enact such laws as will protect this

MACKIAN HOODOO CONFRONTS BARRY

No Graduate of Athletics Has Succeeded as Manager.

DAVIS PROVED A FAILURE

Veteran Philadelphia First Sacker Fell,
Flat as Cleveland Pilot—Monte Cross
Also Failure—Words of Praise For Coombs.

Can Jack Barry, the new manager of the Boston Red Sox, shake off the hoodoo which has pursued other graduates of the Mack school who have tried their hand at the managerial end of the game or will Barry's uncanny world's series luck bring him new fame and fortune in his new capacity? They are interesting questions, and Boston awaits their solution with bated breath.

Conrad Mack unquestionably is one of the shrewdest managers in the history of baseball, and his fate of winning six league pennants and three world's championships stands unequalled. Mack, unlike McGraw, permits his

KID BROAD IS VERY SAD.

Kid Broad, the well known Cleveland boxer of fifteen years ago, was sad when met by a friend in New York the other day. He has been appearing in the "Great Secret," the movie serial of which Bushman and Payne are the stars.

The friend asked the cause of his apparent sorrow.

"I'm in tough luck," replied the Kid. "Lost $50 today. Wasn't on the job when the director wanted me, and he went and got another guy to take the trick. And all there was for me to do was to let some other guys run around him and then make him jump fifty feet into the ocean. Just time of day—a dollar a foot for me to jump, and me not on the job!"

Jack Coombs, who is Robby's man Friday on the Brooklyns, would unquestionably make a high class manager and Stuff' McNamee, the veteran kid, some five or ten years from now should show managerial ability.

Ed Collins, the most famous member of the latter day team, does not seem to hold any managerial ambitions.

AMERICAN LEAGUE IS SLOW.

Game Not as Fast as It Was Ten Years Ago, Says Donovan.

Some veteran American leaguers were discussing Ted Spengler's recent assertion that the American League is not as fast as it was ten years ago because it hasn't as many good pitchers. Bill Donovan agrees with Spengler, because Bill was one of those good pitchers in 1906. So does Scranton Bill Conigliaro, who shook a swift leg at the Washington and Detroit clubs.

"With all due respect to the pitchers today," declared Donovan, "I don't think the quality has improved, and I think the quantity has depreciated. If I had to do it I could go down to Hot Springs next February, take off some weight and win twenty games for any first division team. That sounds like bunk, but the old souper is much stronger now than it was when I quit pitching, and I know the batters are no more smart than the ones I used to fool."

GOULD AFTER SQUASH TITLE.

Court Tennis Champion Wants to Win New Honors.

Jay Gould's increasing strength as a squash tennis player confronts experts in that sport with the possibility of a new champion. As a representative of the Columbia University club in the Metropolitan League Gould has already demonstrated his ability, despite the short time he has been engaged in the game. While Gould is still green in squash as far as position is concerned, he has the agility, severity of stroke, speed, power and craft that brought him the top in court tennis.

With a little more experience Gould will bow in squash only to a champion. His entry into squash will be of great value in spreading interest in and knowledge of a comparatively little known game, the originators of which hampered it with so unhappy a choice of a name.

Pittsburgh Lets Out Hill.

Carmen Hill, pitcher, for the last two years has shared with Lee Meadows of the St. Louis Cardinals the distinction of being the only Indians ever to win a trap shooting championship in minor league baseball wearing eyeglasses, has been released by the Pittsburgh Nationals to the Birmingham club of the Southern League.

Indian Wins Trap Title.

Harrison Cooley, an Indian, recently won the trap shooting championship of Arizona. He is the first Indian ever to win a trap shooting title.

STARS POOR MANAGERS.

Star players are more apt to fail than to be successful as managers. Connie Mack was not rated as a star backstop, yet he has won more major league pennants than any other team leader. Oddly enough, Connie has never been able to develop a successful manager. He got positions for Seybold, Lave Cross, Monte Cross, Topay Hartwell and others as team leaders, and none of them hung on.

The old Chicago Cubs are rated as one of the greatest teams that ever had the diamond. None of the star players or Chicago's old combination has made good when given charge of a team. Those who tried their hand at managing and failed included Johnny Evers, Johnny Kling, Joe Thaler, Mordecai Brown, Jimmy Shuckard and Tommy Leach.

His Pet.

Barker—Think I'll try to sell old Stuken some pet dogs. Barker—Used to think he was a good doggy. Barker—Hasn't any four-legged critters, eh? Barker—Only one, and that's the dining room table—Chicago News.

Motorcyclist Defeats Ice Yacht In Five Mile Race

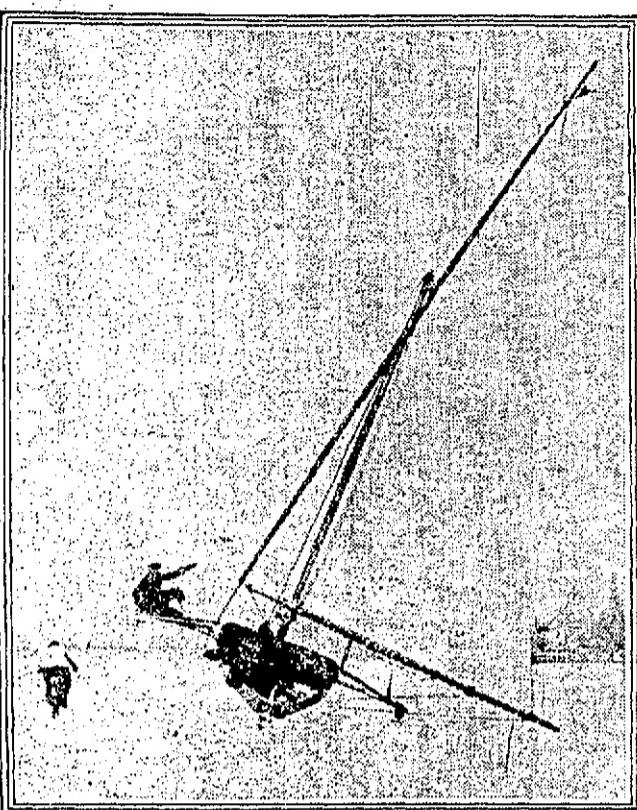

Photo by American Press Association.
THE winter ice sport season at Montreal is now in full blast. All kinds of snow and ice races are held daily, and the attendance is large considering the big Canadian army doing. Recently a novel five mile race between a motorcycle and an iceboat was held. The motorcyclist won by a couple of yards. On the straightaway the ice yacht could outdistance the cyclist, but the latter had it on the haulier of the skeleton craft on the turns. Photo shows the race between the ice yacht and the motorcyclist.

CRUDE WIRELESS SYSTEM.

Long Used by an Indian Tribe of the Amazon Valley.

These days of wireless telegraphy it may be interesting to learn that long ago as July, 1895, the Geographical Journal recorded the discovery of a wireless telegraphic apparatus in use among the Caricuano, an Indian tribe of the Amazon valley, in South America.

The apparatus, called cambarysu, consists of a hole in the ground about half filled with coarse sand; above this layers of dried fragments of wood, bone and powdered shell. Oil is poured next to the surface of the ground.

These materials are surrounded by a cone of hard palm wood, which extends above the surface. The upper part of the apparatus consists of layers of hide, wood and hard rubber. Between the upper layers and the lower layers there is a hollow space. With a club, much like the stick used to play the bone drum, the native strikes the layer of rubber that forms the top of the instrument.

One of these instruments is concealed in each blanket of the tribe. The villages are not more than a mile apart and are placed in a direct north and south line. Although a person standing outside the building in which the apparatus is kept cannot hear a blow of the stick on the rubber top, it is quite distinct in a smaller building a mile distant. When one of these instruments is struck the neighboring ones to the north and south echo the blow. The Indian stationed at each one of the posts answers the signal and by means of code messages a long conversation can be carried on.

An Ounce of Prevention.

For the third time in one afternoon the lady found her new maid fast asleep in the kitchen easy chair.

"What, asleep again?" she said.

"When I engaged you you said you were never tired."

"I know I did," the maid answered.

"But I should be if I didn't sleep,"—New York Times.

Didn't Feel Comfortable.

So great was the indignation of the American colonists in 1775 against the stamp act that the Connecticut stamp office rode into Hartford on a white horse to deposit his resignation, with a glass and armed farmers riding after him, and said he "felt like death on a pale horse with all ladies following him."

His Pet.

Barker—Think I'll try to sell old Stuken some pet dogs. Barker—Used to think he was a good doggy.

Barker—Hasn't any four-legged critters, eh?

Barker—Only one, and that's the dining room table—Chicago News.

What He Said.

"I left home when a mere child. I was discharged from home by my father for painting the front door black in a fit of childish infatuation."

"What did your father say?"

"Go, and never darken my door again."—Exchange.

The best and highest thing a man can do in a day is to sow a seed whether it be in the shape of a word or an act or an acorn.

WHAT DO YOU MEAN—NATURE?
—THE WHOLE PLACE IS COVERED WITH SNOW!!

FOR HOME RULE.

Widow of Skeffington, Executed Irish Editor, Is in America.

HERE WITH HER SON, OWEN.

Plans to Write and Lecture in This Country With the Hope of Interesting Us in the Future Freedom of Ireland.

Mrs. F. Sheehy Skeffington, widow of the Irish editor who was executed in Dublin on April 25 after the uprising headed by Sir Roger Casement, has come to this country to write and lecture about the conditions which led up to the death of her husband. She is living in New York with her seven-year-old son, Owen.

"I am not willing to tell how I got here," said Mrs. Skeffington. "The British government refused to give me a passport, but I was determined to go to the 'by-by land, and these pretty toys will be cultivating his sense of proportion and artistic truth and at the same time giving him a soft corner in his heart for his four footed neighbors."

In Japan comes a very complete set of dolls' furniture which would de-light any small housekeeper. It is cut out of a solid block of Wang Yung wood and can be reassembled into a block again by the use of a little pi-ace and ingenuity, a fact which makes it a most instructive toy, carrying out the Montessori game of solids in a more advanced and more interesting form.

Another fascinating toy which would bring joy to any little girl and to a good many girls is a carpenter's blue apron with a wide pocket, in which there is a very complete set of diminutive tools, and for the more domesticated we find there is a doll's dress-making outfit put up in an attractive box.

With toys such as these, not to mention the better known games in which many can take part, a child can at a very small cost be taught to educate itself unconsciously, learning lessons that are of far greater value for after life than many of those given in the classroom.

To Clean Feather Pillows.

Feathers that have lain for any length of time in pillows should be washed. To do the work in the best possible manner open one corner of the pillow and pour boiling water in upon the feathers. This makes them a wet mess, and they are much more easily handled. Remove them and then wash them thoroughly with soap and water, being careful to rinse them in several waters. Then put them back into the washed cover and hang in the sun where they will dry and be light and fluffy. In this way none of the feathers are lost.

Baked Indian Muff.

Scald one quart of milk in a double boiler, stir in gradually five tablespoons of granulated Indian meal and cook twenty minutes. Add three tablespoonsfuls of butter, one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half teaspoonsful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg and two beaten eggs. Turn into a buttered dish, pour one cupful of cold milk over the top and bake about one hour.

For Baby's Crib.

Baby's crib is made up with as much care as to details as is given to the bed of the elders. Day slippers with the envelope flap are used on the dressing pillow, and a sheet is generally embroidered and scalloped to match.

Another pillowcase that was finished with a perfectly plain hem had a decorative border.

The sheet carried out the same scheme of embroidery.

Cranberry Tarts.

Lime the bottom and sides of small tart or cake tins with a good pie crust and bake in a hot oven for seven to ten minutes, until the pastry is done. Have ready cranberries cooked soft to a syrup of equal parts of sugar and water. Fill the tarts and put back into the oven and bake for five minutes. Allow not more than a teaspoonful of mixture to each tart.

Easy Way to Clean Sweaters and Unders.

For blankets make a lukewarm wash with some good pine soap, add a tablespoonful of ammonia for each pint of water, soak blankets for ten to fifteen minutes, then sponge them till the dirt is out (do not rub). Wrap them through the clothes wringer. Rinse in lukewarm water and again put them through wringer. If you have only a few pieces and do not want to bother with the tub and wringer simply lift them from the suds to the rinse water and hang them up out of this to dry dry.

For sweaters, knit or crocheted jackets and the like proceed same as with blankets, but when it comes to wringing them fold each article in some piece of cotton, such as an apron or a piece of old sheet, and put through the wringer. To dry, if it is sunny, spread a sheet in the sun, place article loosely upon it and cover with another sheet. If it is cloudy they will dry if spread out in a warm room. Do not hang them out.

Preparedness.

"When my husband proposed to me the poor fellow's voice stuck in his throat."

"Then how did you know he was proposing?"

"Well, you see, I was afraid that might happen, so I had taken lessons in lip reading"—Boston Transcript.

UP-TO-DATE.

FISH

Fresh Fish received Mondays,

Wednesdays and Fridays.

A full line of selected Fish,

Oysters and Sea Foods

in Season.

WEAR Horner's

Clothing

WEAR Horner's

WEAR Horner's</

NAN OF MUSIC MOUNTAIN

By Frank H. Spearman
Author of Whispering Smith

Her blood froze at the look in his eyes. "How dare you!" she gasped. "Get out of my way!"

"You little slyx!" He sprang forward and caught her by the wrist. She fought like a tigress. He dragged her strangled into his arms. But above her half-stifled cries and his grunting laugh, Morgan heard a sharp voice: "Take the hands off that girl!"

Whirling, with Nan in his savage arms, the half-brethren mountainmen snarled at De Spain ten feet away, his right hand resting on the grip of his revolver. Stunned, but subdued by mortal dance, Morgan's grasp relaxed. Nan, jerking away, bounded at De Spain and instantly stepped in front of his cousin on whom De Spain seemed about to draw.

"What are you doing here?" demanded Morgan with an enraged oath.

"I left some business with you the other day at Calabasas half-finished," said De Spain. "I'm here this afternoon to clean it up. Get away from that girl!"

"Hi, I'm much frightened even now. The quick step to the side and back-pushing blazed like a flamer—his revolver restrained a moment in its sheath by an eager right arm as fast as I could leap into full-blown play. De Spain's angry face and burning eyes photographed themselves on her memory from that moment. But whatever he meant, she had her part to do. She backed with arms spread low at her sides, directly against her cousin. "You shan't fight," she cried at De Spain.

"Stand away from that man!" retorted De Spain.

"You shan't kill my cousin. What do you mean? What are you doing here? Leave us!"

"Get away, Nan. I tell you, I'll bullet him!" cried Morgan puncturing every word with an oath.

She whirled and caught her cousin in her arms. "He will shoot us both if you fire. Take me away, Gale. You coward!" she exclaimed whirling again with trembling tones to De Spain, "would you kill a woman?"

De Spain saw the danger was past.

It took hardly an instant to show him that Morgan had lost command of a fighter. He looked vacantly, but he made no motion to draw his gun. "I've got to close you into a fight," said De Spain contemptuously, and snarling started to jerk the hesitating cousin.

Nan, in her excitement, ran directly toward the doorway, as if to cut off his movement.

"Don't you dare put me in danger," she cried, facing De Spain defiantly. "Don't you dare fight my cousin here!"

"Stand away from me," barked De Spain, eying Morgan steadily.

"He is wounded now," stormed Nan, so fast she could hardly frame the words. "You shan't kill him. If you are a man don't shoot a wounded man and a woman. You shan't shoot Gale! protect yourself!" Whirling to face her cousin, she took the chance to back directly against De Spain. Both hands were spread open and partly behind her, the palms up, as if to check him. In the instant that she and De Spain were in contact he realized, rather than saw—for his eyes never released Morgan's eyes—what she was frantically slipping to him—the loaded cartridge. It was done in a flash and she was running from him.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Venture in the Dark.

Pushing his way breathlessly forward when he could make lucifer crawl along slowly on his hands and knees when held in opposing rock, flattening himself like a leech against the face of the precipice when the narrowing ledge left him only inches under foot; clinging with hand to every frowning craggle, and pausing when the peril was extreme for fresh strength, De Spain dragged his injured foot across the sheer face of El Capitan in the last shadows of the day's falling light.

Spent by his effort, De Spain reached the treacherous Nan and caught her hand and helped her to the ground.

She enjoyed silence, and led the horse to the little grove. Stopping with it, she stopped and began rearranging the needles on the bushes.

"I'm afraid I'm too late," she said. "How long have you been here? I saw De Spain with one hand on the pony's shoulder."

"Did you have any falls?"

"You see I'm here. You! How could you get here at all with a horse?"

"They are hiding on both trails outside watching for you—and the moon will be up." She seemed very anxious.

De Spain made light of her fears. "I'll give you time—it's got to Nan. Don't give it a thought."

"I don't know what you'll think of me." He heard the troubled note in her voice.

"What do you mean?"

She began to unbutton her jacket, throwing back the revers, she felt inside around her waist, unfastened after a moment and drew forth a leather strap. She laid it at De Spain's whisper. "This is yours," she said in a whisper.

"Take me away, Gale," cried Nan. "Leave him here—take me home! Take me home!"

She caught her cousin's arm, saying right where you are," shouted Morgan, pointing at De Spain, and following Nan as she pulled him along. "When I come back, I'll give you what you're looking for."

"Bring your friends," said De Spain smugly. "I'll accommodate four more of you. Stop! With one hand still on his revolver, he pointed the then with amazement. "Not a cartridge left!" he exclaimed.

"It's your own."

"Where did you get it, Nan?" he whispered hurriedly.

"Where you left it."

"How?" She was silent. "Where?"

"Tonight."

"Have you been to Calabasas and back tonight?"

"Everybody but Sweeney is in the chase," he replied steadily—as if not knowing what to say or how to say it.

"They said you should never believe the gap girls—they are ready with traps everywhere. I didn't know what to do. I couldn't hunt after what you did for me tonight—to think of your being shot down like a dog when I was only trying to get away."

"I wouldn't have had you take a ride like that for forty bucks!"

"Nexalpin showed it to me the last time I was at the stage barn, hunting where you left it." He strapped the cartridges around him.

"You should never have taken that ride for it. But since you have the eastern sky across the distant desert paved for the rising moon. The two stood at the horse's head. I stopped a moment together in the darkness. De Spain, leaning forward, said something in a low, laughing voice. Nan made no answer. Then suddenly he took her hand and, before she could release it, caught it up to his lips.

For a long time after he had gone she stood, listening for a shot—whispering breathless at moments, whether he could get past the waiting traps. De Spain, true to all the bad experience of his Indian life, had left his old, unfinished and unadvised riding, laughing, paying bold court to her even when she stubbornly refused to be courted—and had made himself in the twinkling of an eye a part of the silence beyond—the silence of the night, the wind, the stars, the waste of sand, and of all the mystery that broadened upon it. She would have welcomed in her suspense a sound of some kind some reminder that he yet lived and could yet laugh, none came.

Day was breaking when the right boss, standing in the doorway at the Calabasas barn, saw a horseman riding at a leisurely pace up the Thief River road. The bartender saluted the upholder of law and justice as he rode past.

There was something strange and something familiar in the outline of the figure. But when the night rider had disappeared in front of the barn door, turned his horse loose and limping softly walked forward on foot, the man quivered his eyes, laid before he could believe them. Then he uttered an incredulous greeting and led Henry de Spain into the barn office.

"There's funds of $300 in your room upstairs right now," he declared, bulging with wealth. De Spain, sitting down, forbade the bartender to disturb him, only asking who they were.

When he had asked half a dozen more fleshy questions and avoided answering twice as many, the bartender at De Spain's request helped him up again. Beside himself with excitement the night boss turned, grinning as he laid one hand on the doorknob and the other on De Spain's shoulder.

"You couldn't have come," he wailed loudly "at a better time."

The entryway was dark, and from the steps within the room one might have thought the occupant there were such things as chamber pots.

But when the night rider had disappeared in the darkness, the night man turned, grinning as he laid one hand on the doorknob and the other on De Spain's shoulder.

"You couldn't have come," he wailed again.

"What do you mean?"

"What can't you ride in it yourself?"

"I can make it."

"A good climber can do it—I have done it. I'd even go with you, if I could."

"Why?"

"She shook her head angrily at what he dared show in his eyes. "Oh keep still—"

"I know," he said slowly, "isn't worth it."

"You know—" He could see her resolute underlip, pink with fresh young blood, quiver with intensity of feeling as she faltered. "You know what every man says of every girl—feeling trusting, easy to deceive—everything like that."

"May God witness my tongue before ever it speaks to deceive you, Nan."

"There's not a moment to lose," she said. "Listen. A trail around that mountain leads out of the gap straight across the face of El Capitan."

"I can make it."

"A good climber can do it—I have done it. I'd even go with you, if I could."

"Why?"

"She shook her head angrily at what he dared show in his eyes. "Oh keep still—"

"I know you do, Nan," he declared, apathetic. "But, believe me, I never would let you."

"I can't go, because to do any good I must meet you with a horse out side."

"I only looked silently at her, and she turned her eyes from his gaze. "Say," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I'm careful."

"I must watch my chance to get away from the corral with the gun," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I know you do, Nan," he declared, apathetic. "But, believe me, I never would let you."

"I can't go, because to do any good I must meet you with a horse out side."

"I only looked silently at her, and she turned her eyes from his gaze. "Say," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I'm careful."

"I must watch my chance to get away from the corral with the gun," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I know you do, Nan," he declared, apathetic. "But, believe me, I never would let you."

"I can't go, because to do any good I must meet you with a horse out side."

"I only looked silently at her, and she turned her eyes from his gaze. "Say," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I'm careful."

"I must watch my chance to get away from the corral with the gun," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I know you do, Nan," he declared, apathetic. "But, believe me, I never would let you."

"I can't go, because to do any good I must meet you with a horse out side."

"I only looked silently at her, and she turned her eyes from his gaze. "Say," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I'm careful."

"I must watch my chance to get away from the corral with the gun," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I know you do, Nan," he declared, apathetic. "But, believe me, I never would let you."

"I can't go, because to do any good I must meet you with a horse out side."

"I only looked silently at her, and she turned her eyes from his gaze. "Say," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I'm careful."

"I must watch my chance to get away from the corral with the gun," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I know you do, Nan," he declared, apathetic. "But, believe me, I never would let you."

"I can't go, because to do any good I must meet you with a horse out side."

"I only looked silently at her, and she turned her eyes from his gaze. "Say," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I'm careful."

"I must watch my chance to get away from the corral with the gun," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I know you do, Nan," he declared, apathetic. "But, believe me, I never would let you."

"I can't go, because to do any good I must meet you with a horse out side."

"I only looked silently at her, and she turned her eyes from his gaze. "Say," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I'm careful."

"I must watch my chance to get away from the corral with the gun," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I know you do, Nan," he declared, apathetic. "But, believe me, I never would let you."

"I can't go, because to do any good I must meet you with a horse out side."

"I only looked silently at her, and she turned her eyes from his gaze. "Say," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one clear down to the road—oh, do be careful on El Capitan."

"I'm careful."

"I must watch my chance to get away from the corral with the gun," she said, taking him eagerly to the back of the ledge and pointing below that trail, the one to the east—you can't get lost; you can reach El Capitan before dark—it's very close. Even carefully across El Capitan on that narrow trail, and on the other side there is a wide one

At the Theatres.*THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE WHARF RAT"—A Triangle Fine Arts new five reel drama with Mae Marsh and Spottswoode Aitken in the leading roles, and a two reel Keystone comedy are being presented today. Alice Varnai in the play is Polly Wagner, the orphan daughter of a once famous violinist, and her hopes for becoming a great musician would have been ruined by her niggard step-mother just as the stepmother ruined the career of Carmen's father. It will not be for the secret violin lessons given by her grandfather played by Spottswoode Aitken. After awhile they flee from the stepmother, whose part is played by Lillian Langdon and become vagabond musicians. Miss Marsh had to learn to do two things that she never before knew how to do. In her characterization of Polly Wagner in "The Wharf Rat" she has learned to play the violin and to dive.

SOISSON THEATRE.

"THE RIGHT TO BE HAPPY"—Lovers of Dickens will delight in Blubird's presentation of "The Right to Be Happy" at the Soisson Theatre today with Rupert Julian impersonating Scrooge, the crusty-hearted old "grinch" of "A Christmas Carol." The Dickens classic has been read by millions past and will be read by millions to come. If you who read these lines have missed it go forth and capture a copy with the assurance of an evocation of heart-glow before you and a life-long benefit derived. "The Purple Mask," a two reel serial featuring Grace Cunard and Francis Ford. Inside three of this serial is entitled "The Capture." This episode is concerned with Pat's clever outwitting of Phil, and the result of her ability. The Apache bear of her great dexterity and nerve from Silk Donahue and the butler, who have helped her engineer the dual. They decide to crown her queen of the underworld. The episode gives Miss Cunard an opportunity to appear in two absolutely different styles of dress, "Bombs and Banknotes," a Victor comedy with Wallace Berry. Tomorrow, Marie Walcamp, Eddie Polo and Jack Holt in the thrilling Universal serial, "Liberty." Friday Clara Kimball Young appears in the five reel World drama "The Deep Purple." It is a play which deals with crooks, pug and present reformed and to be reformed. It portrays various kinds and degrees of evil on the surface and below the surface. It is a play which you will remember long after you have seen it. The star of the place has appeared in many successful plays, but the present one gives her the greatest opportunity of her brilliant career. The story is written around the people we never see and you are continually on the lookout for crooks. The authors spent years in research work looking into the characteristics and personalities of the class of people they have written about and this attention to detail plainly shows in the story. Do not miss this.

THE ARCADE.

"THE MARK OF CAIN"—Dorothy Phillips, the pretty little star, will be seen today for the first time at the Arcade in the Red Feather picture "The Mark of Cain." It's a powerful drama of love and ambition and Miss Phillips is too well known to Connellsville movie fans need any introduction. The Indian Princess Moira will be a two reel feature, "The Seeds of Jealousy." Allan Holubar and Harry Carter will support Ned Gobey in the society raffle story, "The Shadow," in two reels.

THE ARCADE.

Connellsville may never again see such a picture as "Graustark," which was presented at the Arcade yesterday. It was the story superb and the cast splendid. Francis Bushman, Beverly Bayne, Edna Mayo, Lester Cuneo and a host of other celebrities. Possible such talent may never again be assembled for a theatrical performance. "Graustark" was written by Mr. McCutcheon, by the fires of genius with no thought of pecuniary interest as are some of the present day books and scenarios. It has taken its place along side the plays that will live forever. With such stars and pictures the Arcade has rapidly sprung into the lead in the local picture house field. Many other famous stars and noted pictures are booked for the near future. Last night's audience was a representative one, many of the best people in town being present.

OPHEUM THEATRE.

"THE MISCHIEF MAKER"—The spirit of mischief runs rampant through the soul of Effie Marchand the character whom June Caprice portrays in "The Mischief Maker," her latest photoplay for William Fox which will be shown here today and tomorrow. She is so full of fun that she keeps her Aunt Marchand sitting up nights worrying about her. When the worst comes to the worst and the girl positively refuses to notice the photograph of the man her aunt has selected for her husband, the old lady decides that boarding school is the only place for such beings. More she has to be treated by all first-class druggists—the time of her life. See this picture also.

Navy Will Lose the Milwaukee, Stranded on the Pacific Coast.

The stranded cruiser Milwaukee, whose crew was taken off, was washed further toward shore near Lureka Cat. As the hull continued to fill with water, hope of salvaging the vessel faded. Navy salvagers have abandoned efforts to save the submarine H-1, which the Milwaukee was trying to pull off the beach when the cruiser was swept ashore. Two factors responsible for the beaching of the Milwaukee were a dense fog, strong current and the drag of the heavy line attached to the H-1. The Milwaukee was built at the Union iron works, San Francisco, and went into commission in 1906.

and see what happens to her. The status which plays an important role in this play was actually posed by the person it is supposed to represent. The head was made from a cast of June Caprice's head and the body was moulded complete in a cast posed by Margaret Fielding. In the story this is actually supposed to have occurred May, the character played by Miss Fielding, poses for the statue and June Caprice, interprets it.

PERRYOPOLIS.

PERRYOPOLIS, Jan. 17.—At a recent meeting of the Chillicothe Sunday school they elected the following officers for the year: Superintendent Dento S. Lee, assistant superintendent Bert Duff, secretary Thomas Wringrove, assistant secretary Freda Hinenbaugh, treasurer Mrs. Ida Moore. S. B. Dobbins of Connellsville was a business visitor here yesterday.

Lewis Kindevater, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kindevater, is quite ill.

There will be a lecture and temperance rally in the Methodist Episcopal for the head. When May accuses Ellis of having been the model for the body, everyone believes her. This he leads to the complications which bring the story to a dramatic end. "Luke's Preparation," a Lonesome Luke comedy Friday and Saturday. William Fox presents William Farnum in "The Price of Silence," the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" of today. "The Price of Silence" is a powerful story of love and renunciation woven into a theme of burning public interest—child slavery. What "Uncle Tom's Cabin" did for the negro slave, William Fox's "The Price of Silence" will do for the child slave.

OHIOPILE.

OHIOPILE, Jan. 17.—Mrs. John Kauffman of Connellsville spent Monday evening shopping in town. J. W. Chuck returned to Uniontown Monday evening after a short business trip spent here.

R. C. Holt was a business visitor in Connellsville and Uniontown Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Gandy Shipley of Dillwood spent Monday shopping here.

Roy Kaffer of Connellsville spent Monday here on business.

Mr. Torrence of Scotland was here on business yesterday.

W. H. McIverett of Connellsville spent Tuesday here looking after business.

William Johnson was a Connellsville caller yesterday.

E. Oster of Connellsville spent Tuesday here on business.

M. H. Hochstetter left yesterday for Ligonier to attend to some business.

Mrs. Edwin of Connellsville was shopping here Monday.

Mrs. L. D. Fry is prepared to do all

CURES NEURITIS and RHEUMATISM

Bands for Cold, Coughs, Sore Throat Over Night.

For 25 cents you can get a big pack of GINGEROLIC and druggists will tell you that it's better than any plaster, liniment or poultice you ever used, money back.

There surely is nothing so good on earth for sprains, strains, bursitis, bunions, callus, chilblains or frostbitten feet. Just rub it on, it will not blister.

GINGEROLIC absorbs instantly, it penetrates and that's why it only takes a few minutes to get rid of earache, headache, toothache, backache and neuralgia.

GINGEROLIC won't blister, and is always ready. It always satisfies.

GINGEROLIC is for sale and recommended by all first-class druggists—the time of our life. See this picture also.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

—Wednesday and Thursday—

PEOPLE DO TALK

The Gossip of College Girls is What Causes the Mishaps Which Overwhelm JUNE CAPRICE

In Her William Fox Photoplay

"The Mischief Maker"

It is the story of a girl whose overwhelming good humor gets her into all sorts of trouble. She is wrongly accused of having posed for an artist. But she finds happiness in the end.

Also—A Lonesome Luke Comedy.

—Friday and Saturday—

CHILDREN TO THE SCRAP HEAP

Powerful Photoplay Against Destruction of the Boys and Girls of the Country

See the William Fox Photoplay

"THE PRICE OF SILENCE"

With Great Actor

William Farnum

WRIGHT-METZLER CO.*STYLE and REDFERN CORSETS are Synonymous

—A woman is only as stylish as her corset permits her Redfern Models are in the minutest detail—designing, fabrics, daintiness of laces—the very essence of style.

—The French woman, as a rule, is not beautiful but she has chic. She has made her charm famous because of her style, and above all she has pride in her figure—her corset is her prime asset.

—A Redfern will mould your figure into lines of grace and beauty that the French woman may well envy, for the American woman has the most beautiful figure in the world if she will only care for it.

An Aggressive January Clearance Sale*Save on Ladies' Coats, Suits and Dresses

All Suits, 13 to 18, black navy, brown, green, up to $25.00 values ... Choice, $7.75
1 Lot Ladies' Coats including seal, $12.50 to $65 values ... Sale Price, One-Third Off
All other Coats, good materials and colors, $10 to $32.50 values ... Price, One-Half Off
Ladies' Afternoon Dresses, silk, seige velvet, $7.50 to $65 values ... Price, One-Half Off
All Evening Gowns, elegant materials and colors ... Price, One-Fourth Off

Other Important Savings Ladies' Apparel

One lot Raincoats, Ladies', Misses' Children's, rubber lined ... One-Third Off
1 Lot Skirts, black, navy, grey regular $2.95 to $5.75 values ... Sale Price, $1.95
Ladies' and Children's Furs, Muffs, Scarfs, Sets ... One-Third to One-Half Off
1 Lot Knit Goods, Sweaters Toques Sacques, etc ... One-Fourth Off
1 Lot Sport Skirts, plaids, stripes, mixtures regular $6.50 to $12.50 ... Third Off

Waists, Kimonos, Bath Robes and Millinery

1 Lot Lawn and Voile Waists, slightly soiled $1 to $1.50 ... Sale Price, 60¢ each
1 Lot Voile, Tub Silk, Crepe Georgette Waists, $2.50 to $12.50 values ... One-Fourth Off
Cotton Crepe and Crepe de Chine Kimonos, many styles ... Sale Price, Fourth Off
Eiderdown and Corduroy Bathrobes all colors and sizes ... Sale Price, Fourth Off
All Millinery in 6 lots at $5.95, $3.50, $1.95, $1.35, $0.95, $0.95 ... Save One-Half

Gold Bond Stamps Pay an Additional 4% on Every Purchase

78 Prominent Philadelphia Clergymen Announced from Their Pulpits Sunday, December 3.

THAT THOMAS H. INCE'S

"Civilization"

Was the Most Powerful Plea for Universal Peace the World Has Ever Witnessed—See This Wonderful Picture at the

ORPHEUM THEATRE

AND THEN THANK GOD THIS NATION IS NOT AT WAR

Two Days Only—Jan. 22 and 23

Special Music

Played by the Famous

Nirella's Pittsburg Orchestra

—with—

MRS. MARY HUNT MCCOY OF NEW YORK

Soprano Soloist.

Special Operator and Effect Men Direct from the Criterion Theatre N. Y.

4 Shows Daily—1.15, 4, 6.45, 9.15.
Bargain Matinees—25c and 50c.
Evenings, 25c, 50c, 75c, and $1.

SEATS NOW SELLING

IF YOU HAVE*A PRINTING WANT

WE WANT TO KNOW WHAT IT IS

Putting out good printing is our business, and when we say GOOD PRINTING we don't mean fair, but the best obtainable. If you are "from Missouri" give us a trial and we will

SHOW YOU